CHANDOS
ASIAN STUDIES SERIES:
CONTEMPORARY ISSUES AND TRENDS

Series Editor: Professor Chris Rowley,
Cass Business School, City University, UK
(email: c.rowley@city.ac.uk)

Chandos Publishing is pleased to publish this major Series of books entitled Asian Studies: Contemporary Issues and Trends. The Series Editor is Professor Chris Rowley, Cass Business School, City University, UK.

Asia has clearly undergone some major transformations in recent years and books in the Series examine this transformation from a number of perspectives: economic, management, social, political and cultural. We seek authors from a broad range of areas and disciplinary interests: covering, for example, business/management, political science, social science, history, sociology, gender studies, ethnography, economics and international relations, etc.

Importantly, the Series examines both current developments and possible future trends. The Series is aimed at an international market of academics and professionals working in the area. The books have been specially commissioned from leading authors. The objective is to provide the reader with an authoritative view of current thinking.

New authors: we would be delighted to hear from you if you have an idea for a book. We are interested in both shorter, practically orientated publications (45,000+ words) and longer, theoretical monographs (75,000–100,000 words). Our books can be single, joint or multi-author volumes. If you have an idea for a book, please contact the publishers or Professor Chris Rowley, the Series Editor.

About the author

Dr. Lei Tang was born and brought up in China. After having received the bachelors degree in China, she moved to France.

She received the Ph.D. degree in science management from an accredited French public institution, Institut National des Télécommunications (www.int-evry.fr). Currently, she is working as an assistant professor in marketing and strategy department of a school of business in France.

Her education and research interests straddle between marketing management and telecom engineering, making marketing principles accessible to engineering and reaching out to practitioners in the chosen application fields.

Her current research goals mainly focus on Technology adoption and Innovation diffusion from an international comparative perspective – consumer behaviour with its technological, intercultural, anthropological and sociological aspects – that is mostly business-based. Her future work seeks to develop MVNO business models, mobile advertising, mobile payment and other killer mobile applications. Her interest in Chinese business (domestic and international) is attributed to her Chinese origin. She has undertaken consultancy work and research projects for many companies.
